JAMES O. EASTLAND COLLECTION
FILE SERIES 3: CONSTITUENT FILES
SUBSERIES 5: CASE FILES

This subseries consists of 296 boxes of case files. Congressional offices create case files when constituents and other individuals seek the assistance of congressional members in negotiating a benefit, ruling, or reimbursement for personal gain from the federal government (and occasionally from state governments and private businesses). Examples will include constituents having problems with the Social Security payments or Veterans benefits, employers wanting visas for workers to enter the country, and farmers wanting loans from the Farmers Home Administration.

Files are arranged alphabetically by the name of the individual seeking assistance. Additional descriptive information includes the name of the government department or agency involved as well as the dates on the files documents. The last eight boxes in the subseries hold loose and boxed index cards with individual case information.

Access Restriction: Case files often contain data such as Social Security numbers, military service records, and detailed medical and financial information. For privacy and confidentiality concerns, the Modern Political Archives restricts access to case files for seventy-five years after the last dated document in each file. With proof of identity, individuals may access their own file prior to that release date. In addition, researchers may request the files of those individuals that are deceased.
